Colour Claim

Colour is claimed as a feature of the trademark. THE COLOURS OF THE ISRAELITE NATION COAT OF ARMS The Israelite Nation Coat of Arms is designed in the format of an Heraldic Shield, surrounded with a distinct Golden Border. At the Head, in the centre, the name of our Royal Family is inscribed in bold White letters on a dark Blue background: 'THE ISRAELITE NATION'. Centred above the name of our Israelite Family are three (3) Golden Stars, each with six points; the Middle Star, being twice the size of the other two, is slightly elevated. The Body of the Shield is equally divided vertically into two colours of Red on the Left Side and Blue on the Right Side. In the middle thereof is the Golden Seven-Branch Candlestick, with the Central Branch of the Golden Seven-Branch Candlestick running along the equal, vertical, colour division; i.e. Three Branches on the Right or Blue Side and Three Branches on the Left or Red Side. Seven Golden Flames of Fire rise equally from the top of each Candle. Over the Top of the Golden Seven-Branch Candlestick, in the centre thereof, sits a Golden Bowl with Seven Golden Flames of Fire, each one rising equally from the Golden Bowl. The Base of the Golden Seven-Branch Candlestick sits firmly on an opened Book with a Golden Cover, representing the Holy Word (Covenant) of the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob, which is opened to span equally across the lower section of the Shield, where it begins to narrow. On each side of the Golden Seven- Branch Candlestick, is a Golden Olive Tree with its Root firmly planted in Holy Word; i.e. the opened Book, and reaching upward on each side, along the middle of the Blue and the Red, toward the Golden Bowl, displaying its Green Leaves along the way to the Right and to the Left of the Golden Bowl. Below the opened Book is a Golden Ribbon with our Motto inscribed in the centre thereof: 'HEAR, O ISRAEL THE LORD OUR GOD IS ONE', as the Shield continues to narrow to the shape of a 'V', while maintaining the equal division between the Blue and Red colours.

The applicable law protecting Italian Geographical Indications is embedded within the European legal framework. Being Italy is a Member State of the European Union (EU), it is subject to the EU law, including to the acts of the EU governing body (namely the European Commission). Since a harmonized EU legislation on Geographical Indications does exist, it applies directly to all Member States, including Italy. Hence, the applicable law protecting Italian Geographical Indications is the European Law. More precisely, the legal basis for the Geographical Indications regime is laid down in REGULATION (EU) No 1151/2012 OF THE EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT AND OF THE COUNCIL of 21 November 2012 on "Quality schemes for agriculture products and foodstuffs".

The most relevant rules can be found within TITLE II "PROTECTED DESIGNATIONS OF ORIGIN AND PROTECTED GEOGRAPHICAL INDICATIONS" therein. 'Burrata di Andria' is a cheese typical of Apulia that differs from other cheeses on account of its particular production method and its organoleptic characteristics, which make it one of the most highly prized and unusual cheeses from Apulia and the South of Italy. According to oral tradition, 'Burrata di Andria' was invented by Mr Lorenzo Bianchino on an old estate in the first decades of the twentieth century. It is said that due to heavy snowfall, preventing him from delivering the milk to town, and meaning that he had to process it in some way and most importantly use the cream that naturally formed on the surface, Mr Bianchino tried using the same procedure as is used to make mantèche (casings made of aged pasta filata used to store butter) to make a fresh product. To this should be added the natural instinct of all peasant culture - avoiding waste and putting any surplus production to good use. Mr. Bianchino therefore sought to mix the bits left over from pasta filata production with the cream and wrap this concoction in a casing also made of pasta filata. 'Burrata di Andria' looks like a pasta filata bag that is shaped by hand and that contains 'shredded' pasta filata and cream. The mixture of cream and pasta filata shreds are known as stracciatella. The term stracciatella, coming from the verb 'to rip', derives from the way in which the contents are prepared. The pasta filata is ripped by hand into ragged strips. One of the first references to this product dates back to 1931 in the Guida del Touring Club [Touring Club Guide], and 'Burrata di Andria' became very popular from the outset, not just in Italy but also abroad, to such an extent that the Shah of Iran himself became one of its most faithful aficionados. The simple and buttery taste of this typical Apulian product, means that it is appreciated by everyone who, wishing to explore Mediterranean cuisine, seeks simple, genuine products that are not overly processed. 'Burrata di Andria' figures on the menus of numerous restaurants all over the world, which highlight the product's value by specifying that it comes from Andria in Italy. In addition to having faithfully preserved the link between production tradition and territory, 'Burrata di Andria' has succeeded in building up a remarkable market prominence given its limited shelf life, which restricts its marketing. As burrata is a product that has to be consumed fresh, it seems to have been overlooked by the major commercial operators and relegated to a niche market. Nevertheless, there is still strong demand for this product due to the fact that it enjoys an excellent reputation among consumers. Numerous articles have been written about this cheese in both the national and foreign press. In a report dated 26 August 1977, I Corriere della Sera referred to 'Burrata di Andria' as an example of cheese-making excellence in Apulia and indeed all of southern Italy. An article in La Repubblica dated 16 December 1999 specifically mentioned 'Burrata di Andria' as a product worth preserving. It was also described as an amazing and unique cheese in an article by Allan Bay on www.vivimilano.it/atavola. In an article on 30 July 1999, Il Sole 24 Ore, referred to Burrata as one of Apulia's outstanding culinary specialities. An article in La Stampa, written by Vanna Pescatori, entitled 'La Mondanità' ['Society Life'], this exquisite cheese is mentioned on the menu of the Gala dinner organised by Ferrari, the prestigious car manufacturer based in Maranello. In an article in the Il Sole 24 Ore Sunday supplement Temp Liberato, entitled 'Giacometti gustosi da salvaguardare' ['Delicious culinary heritage that must be preserved']. Davide Paolini likened 'Burrata di Andria' to other Italian culinary specialities such as Mozzarella di Bufala Campana, Coppa Piacentina, Caciocavallo Silano, etc. that should be protected and preserved. On 18 August 1990, Nicola Dante Basile, in an article entitled 'Formaggi, il pecorino guida l'export' ['Cheese: pecorino is the leading export'] in the agricultural supplement of Il Sole 24 Ore, described 'Burrata di Andria' as 'demanding' - no doubt in reference to the care bordering on veneration with which such a cheese should be treated. In 2000, following the establishment of the register of traditional products by the Ministry of Agriculture (with Ministerial Decree No 350/1999), 'Burrata di Andria' was immediately registered on the Apulia region's very first list. It was described by Alberto Pejrano as 'a dairy jewel' the Slow Food Weekend feature 'I profumi della Puglia di Federico II' ['The flavours of Frederick II's Apulia'] on 9 October 2000. On the website www.stayinitaly.com, in the section on the Apulia Region, 'Burrata di Andria' is mentioned as one of the region's typical cheeses. Other writers on the website www.agipzone.com, describe 'Burrata di Andria' as the height of refinement. Despite its short shelf life, 'Burrata di Andria' is greatly appreciated abroad, even in countries as far away as the USA, where the product is shipped weekly by some member producers. An example of its popularity is that it figures on the menu of Il Fornaio, a well-known chain of restaurants that often organises themed campaigns during which it promotes certain specialties and delicacies.

The demarcated area is divided into two sub-areas: Valle de Monterrei, which includes part of the municipalities of Castrelo do Val, Monterrei, Oímbra and Verín; and Ladera de Monterrei, which consists of the municipality of Vilardevós and part of the municipalities of Castrelo do Val, Oímbra, Monterrei, Verín and Riós. The entire territory is located in the province of Ourense in the Autonomous Community of Galicia.

Qualification

1. Regulation (EU) N°1308/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 17 December 2013 establishing a common organisation of the markets in agricultural products and repealing Council Regulations (EEC) No 922/72, (EEC) no 234/79, (EC) No 1037/2001 and (EC) No1234 /2007. 2. Extract from the register of protected designation of origin and protected geographical indications established by article 104 of Regulation (EU) No 1308/2013. 3. Publication of a communication of approval standard amendment to a product specification for a name in the wine sector as referred to in Article 17(2) and (3) of Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) 2019/33. The autochthonous varieties, together with the soils and the extreme microclimate, produce wines with differentiated characteristics, personal and with great complexity of aromas. As far as the climate is concerned, PDO Monterrei belongs to the basin of the Duero River, where the Támega River flows through the region from north to south. It has a temperate Mediterranean climate with a continental tendency, influenced by the Atlantic Ocean. Its summers are hot and dry while its winters are cold, it hosts considerable thermal oscillations of up to 30° during the ripening period. We are facing an area with little rainfall, which allows reducing phytosanitary treatments since there are no fungal diseases. As for the soils, we have three types of soils: slate (they provide aromas in red wines), sandy (from the degradation of granitic rocks, suitable for white wines) and clayey (ideal during times of drought). The varieties protected under the Monterrei designation of origin are divided into preferred and authorized varieties. The preferred varieties used for the production of the protected wines are: Godello, Treixadura and Doña Blanca (white) Mencía and Merenzao (red). As authorized varieties are Tempranillo (Araúxa), Sousón and Caíño Tinto, in red, while in white we have Albariño, Blanca de Monterrei, Loureira and Caíño Blanco. With respect to the type of wines, Monterrei has young, barrel, vintage, reserve and grand reserve. All Monterrei wines must be made with a minimum of 60% of preferred varieties. The choice of the best land and the use of growing techniques adapted to the varieties and to the area, in particular the training and pruning systems used to ensure the wine production potential is properly kept in check, also have an impact on the wines' characteristics, in terms of their floral and fruity aromas and balanced taste.

Qualification

LEGAL INSTRUMENT: Article 107 of Regulation (EU) No 1308/2013. Community of Castilla y León- DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE LIVESTOCK FARMING AND RURAL DEVELOPMENT: ORDER AGR/842/2020 of 2nd September 2020 approving the Regulations of the "Bierzo" Designation of Origin and its Regulatory Board. The wines of the protected area owe their typicity mainly linked to the geographical environment: the soil, geological and climatic characteristics of our region, make it an exceptional area for vine growing. All the municipalities have similar characteristics, so the latter can be considered suitable for the production of quality wines. In addition, farmers have selected the most suitable and best adapted varieties to the environment in which they are developed, since they are indigenous varieties, which can be found in all the municipalities that are part of the Designation. The cultivation methods are the most suitable and allow to obtain a singular and different product, since we are talking about vineyard plots planted from the end of the 19th century and beginning of the 20th century, with the same varieties, same rootstocks, planting frames and similar production systems. The main circumstances that prove this link are summarized below: The clay-loam soils, with a greater or lesser amount of thick elements such as slates and quartzites, shall bring elegance and finesse to the wines, which shall make them easily distinguishable from wines from other areas. The microclimate of the region is different from that of the surrounding areas that are located outside the mountain range, since we have a strong Atlantic influence that causes the region to have abundant rainfall and a mild annual average temperature, along with a certain continentality due to the strong thermal oscillation that shall favor the ripening of the grape. We find the vineyards on slopes of greater or less gradient and whose altitude varies, and we can find vines at an altitude of more than 1000 m above sea level, so the wines are going to be very fresh and lively. The varieties that we find in El Bierzo are perfectly adapted to the environment. Mostly we find the Mencía and the Godello varieties, although to a lesser extent we find the other authorized varieties. Our red wines are wines with a great fruit expression, fresh and with great ageing capacity in barrels. White wines are fresh, tasty and with volume in the mouth, making them unmistakable. The planting frames that have been traditionally used are narrow planting frames, which together with the characteristics of the soils means that grape productions are not very high and grape of a high quality is produced, with balanced analytical parameters and a good maturation. The age of the vineyard in the area gives the wines of the area is an added value, since the average age of the Bierzo vineyard is around 75 years, old vineyards being 85% of the vine surface. It must be taken into account that the quality of the grapes produced by the old vines is very high since, over the years, there is a balance between the means of production of the vine and its harvest, making the maturation optimize. The powerful and deep root system shall explore a greater volume of soil, ensuring mineral nutrition, as well as greater availability of water, making plants less sensitive to climatic variations each year, ensuring constant ripening throughout of the years. Also, the greater volume of old wood accumulates a greater quantity of reserves than mobilized towards the bunches, they contribute to maintaining the quality in the successive harvests. In addition, the old vines have a large number of scars produced by pruning wounds, which hinder the flow of the sap through the conducting vessels, making them develop fewer bunches, and these shall be smaller and thanks to these flow difficulties tend to produce a greater accumulation of sugars and other quality compounds in the grape. In short, the different microclimate of the area, a mix between the Atlantic and the continental climate, together with the soils, the predominance of old vineyards and the high density of plantation that shall give low productions with very good ripening, will contribute to obtain wines with plenty of fresh fruit, balanced and with good acidity

GEOGRAPHICAL INDICATION DETAILS

VERMUT DI TORINO

Indication type

Goods

Wine.

Territory

The entire area of the Region of Piedmont, in Italy.

Qualification

`Vermut di Torino' is well known throughout the world thanks to the tradition and history of its production in the Piedmont region since the end of the 18th century. The product originates from the region of Piedmont, specifically from Turin. In the early 1800s. `Vermut di Torino' referred to a particular type of aromatised wine produced in Piedmont and with a unique composition and method of production. `Vermut di Torino' became well-known in the first half of the 19th century, when worldwide exports began. This was followed by major expansion from 1880 onwards. Thanks to the great success of `Vermut di Torino' on the international scene, distillers from Piedmont that had already been famous since the 18th century added this particular wine product to their product range. It was this success that allowed them to build their large, modern production facilities in the 19th century, which contributed significantly towards the development of Italy's wine industry in modern times. The success of `Vermut di Torino' also boosted the development of local crops of medicinal plants from the 19th century onwards, particularly the various Artemisia species used in producing it. Many of the herbs traditionally used in the production of `Vermut di Torino' are widely found in the Piedmont region, including the most characteristic ingredient: Artemisia absinthium (common wormwood) and/or Artemisia pontica (Roman wormwood), a medicinal plant for which Piedmont is still the main Italian producer region to this day. However, wormwood is only the most important of a wide range of herbs harvested and grown since time immemorial in Piedmont, including yarrow, chamomile, hyssop, savory, marjoram, clary sage, elder, thyme, and spices such as cinnamon, cardamom, cloves, coriander, nutmeg, vanilla, saffron and many others, which give `Vermut di Torino' its unique aroma and taste. The product's reputation became so inextricably linked to the Piedmont region and Turin, where commercial activity of master vermouth makers developed, proliferated and over time reached significant levels of production, attesting to the important economic role which this distinctive product now plays. The combination of the ingredients and production techniques have over the years been passed down from generation to generation, with unique tastes and characteristics found in the recipes jealously guarded by each company. The processing techniques used have changed, new ones have joined older ones and this combination of the old and the new even today continues to preserve and enhance traditional production. Evidence of the success enjoyed by 'Vermut di Torino' can be found in Italian newspapers dating back to an article published in the 'Gazzetta di Milano' on 4 May 1833. Similar reports were published outside Italy, e.g. in France (1859), Spain (1859) and the U.S. (1874). References continue to be made to this day in culinary, technical and commercial magazines, such as La Nuova Antologia (1933), Bulletin of California Agricultural Experiment Station (1941), Vignevini (2002), Bargiomale (2017), La Stampa (2017), etc. There are also references to 'Vermut di Torino' in many books, in particular: 'Il Vermouth di Torino' by A. Strucchi (1907), 'The Vermouth of Turin' by F. Piccinino (2016) and 'Il grande libro del Vermouth di Torino' by G. Mainardi and P. Berta (2018). The product has also been mentioned in the literary works of many Italian writers, such as Edmondo De Amicis, Paolo Monelli and Cesare Pavese. Elsewhere in the world, it has also been mentioned by Henry de Kock and Léon Beauvallet (1854), Aristide Bruant (1902), Paul Cazin (1933), Alfred Hart (1987), Jean-Louis de Faucigny-Lucinge (1990) and Luke Allan (2016), to cite just a few names. 'Vermut di Torino' has been featured at major international exhibitions and won countless prizes, which are often mentioned on labels by producers. Some of these events included: the Universal Exposition in Paris (1855), the International Exhibition in Dublin (1865), the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia (1876), the Expo in Shanghai (2010) and the Expo in Milan (2015). Even nowadays, 'Vermut di Torino' is still a regular feature at major commercial fairs, in particular Vinitaly (Verona), the Salone del Gusto (Turin), ProWein (Düsseldorf), and often with collective stands representing dozens of different brands. Ministerial Decree no. 1826 of March 22, 2017 and English translation thereof. Annex A to Ministerial Decree no. 1826 of March 22, 2017 ("Product Specification") and English translation thereof. Regulation (EU) no. 251/2014 of the European Parliament and of the Council, of 26 February 2014, on the definition, description, presentation, labelling and the protection of geographical indications of aromatised wine products.
