Certification Mark Standard

The use of the certification mark is intended to indicate that the specific goods listed in association with which the trademark is used are of the following defined standard: The use of the certification mark is granted by Demeter Canada, the certifying body in Canada, to individuals whose operations and products have been inspected and approved as meeting the Demeter International Standards for a minimum of two years. The word DEMETER indicates to the purchaser of the specific listed goods that biodynamic agricultural methods, in accordance with the teachings of Dr. Rudolf Steiner, have been applied in the production and processing of those goods under the guidance of Demeter Canada in such a way that the trust of the purchaser in the biodynamic method and in the Demeter products is confirmed and justified that the goods are of a standard and quality that is in accordance with the Demeter International Standards. A copy of the Demeter International Standards (revised as of 2020) has been provided to the Canadian Intellectual Property Office and is available for inspection on request. The Biodynamic agricultural methods consist of practising agriculture in such a manner that it cares for the fertility of the soil, the plants, the seeds and propagating material, and the animals, and it is generally in harmony with local conditions. Biodynamic production and processing standards require transparent product history from creation through to final product. Processed products include agricultural and animal products which originate from certified DEMETER biodynamic farms, and during processing the biodynamic qualities of the raw materials are maintained or enhanced. Additives and processing aids are generally avoided and if Demeter quality raw materials are not available then products inspected and certified by recognised organic associations and certification bodies may be used or products with a basic certification for common organic legal norms, such as the EU Regulation on organic farming, the National Organic Program (NOP), Japan Agricultural Standard (JAS) or equivalent organic legal norms.

GEOGRAPHICAL INDICATION DETAILS

VIN DE GLACE DU QUÉBEC

Indication type

Wine

Goods

Wine.

Territory

The cultivation of grape varieties for the production of ice wine is possible in areas where the climate is warm enough to obtain good quality grapes. The first index is the period of frost-free days, that must last a minimum of 150 days. The second index is the cumulative growing degree days on a 10°C basis; this value must be at least 900. The third index is the winter temperature, which must not be lower than -35°C, or else the vines can suffer deadly frosts that could jeopardize the sustainability of the production. The geographical area for the production of ice wine in Quebec corresponds to the territory where the three agroclimatic indices are present. According to the mathematical model used in the Agroclimatic Atlas, a 10 km buffer zone (1 pixel) has been added at the edge of the delineated area. The climatic constraints associated with the geographic location create a productive corridor along the St. Lawrence River that begins, in the northeast, at Île d'Orléans and widens as it descends southwest to the border.

Qualification

Project specifications of the geographical indication updated on 23 November 2021. The name is recognized and protected in the province of Quebec as a geographical indication for wine, published by an order of the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food of Quebec in the Gazette officielle du Québec of December 30, 2014, Volume 146, N° 53, part II, page 4954, under the Act respecting reserved designations and added-value claims, CQLR, c. A-20. 03. Climatic hazards such as the wind, cold and sun affect the grapes left on the vine which enables, with alternating freeze-thaw conditions, to concentrate the sugars through the dehydration of the fruit and to develop the flavours of the grapes. The humid continental climate of the delineated geographical area allows the growth of vines, fruiting and ripening of the fruits at different stages according to the grape varieties, which promotes the production of grapes suitable for making ice wine. Ice wine from Quebec is characterized by the source of the grapes used for its production. The grapes must be grown in Quebec, within the delineated geographical area. The product must be processed from manually harvested grapes, preferably frozen at an outside temperature lower or equal to -8 °

C, and pressed in this state. Potential alcohol content varies from 7% to 14. 9%. The residual sugar and percentage of alcohol by volume result only from the natural sugars of the grapes having frozen naturally on the vine.
