Colour is claimed as a feature of the trademark. There is an interior box of steel grey with a leading line moving outside and then sloping upwards to the right, like the roof of a home, before dropping down and looping under the steel grey box again. There are thicker orange lines moving from within the grey lines of the house outline upwards, making a larger house outline with the roof sloping down to the left before the orange line ends outside of the steel grey house outline. The grey and orange lines never touch in this design, there is always a white space break where the lines would have crossed.
